Journal of Hydrology, 134 (1992) 399
Elsevier Science Publishers B.V., Amsterdam

Contents

Publishers Note v

Research Papers

Groundwater management through increased water use by lupin crops
E.A.N. Greenwood, N.C. Turner, G.D. Watson, N.R. Venn (Wembley, W.A., Australia) and E.-D. Schulze, (Bayreuth, Germany), ... 1

Representativeness errors in comparisons between radar and gauge measurements of rainfall
M. Kitchen and R.M. Blackall (Bracknell, UK) 13

SHIFT: a distributed runoff model using irregular triangular facets
O.L. Palacios-Vélez and B. Cuevas-Renaud (Montecillo, Mexico). 35

Muskingum method with variable parameters for flood routing in channels
G.-T. Wang (Beijing, China) and V.P. Singh (Baton Rouge, LA, USA) 57

Water-yield changes after clear-felling tropical rainforest and establishment of forest plantation in Sabah, Malaysia
A. Malmer (Umeå, Sweden) 77

A new technique for the analysis of continuously monitored water-quality data
D. Hirst (Ayr, UK) 95

Hydrochemical cycles in tropical rainforest: an overview with emphasis on Central Amazonia
M. C. Forti (São José dos Campos, Brazil) and C. Neal (Wallingford, UK) 103

Parameter constraints on closed-form soilwater relationships
C. Fuentes, R. Haverkamp (Grenoble, France) and J.-Y. Parlange (Ithaca, NY, USA) . . . 117

Dominant events in extreme rainfall records
K.J.A. Revfeim (Wellington, New Zealand) 143

Accuracy of basin-wide forecasts of streamflows
A. R. Rao (W. Lafayette, IN, USA) and C.H. Hsieh (Calabasas, CA, USA). 151

Application of field infiltration data to hydrologic model parameterization: an example from drainage basins disturbed by surface mining
J.B. Ritter (University Park, PA, USA) 173

A stable isotope study of bank storage mechanisms in the Truckee river basin
S.A. McKenna, N.L. Ingraham, R.L. Jacobson and G.F. Cochran (Rena, NV, USA). . . . 203

Determination of groundwater catchment areas in two and three spatial dimensions
W. Kinzelbach, M. Marburger and W.-H. Chiang (Kassel, Germany). 221

Groundwater processes, sandplain seeps and interactions with regional aquifer systems in South-Western Australia
R.J. George (Bunbury, W.A., Australia) 247

Hydrogeology of Grand Cayman, British West Indies: a karstic dolostone aquifer
K.-C. Ng, B. Jones (Edmonton, Alb., Canada) and R. Beswick (Grand Cayman, West Indies) 273

Human impact on regional groundwater composition through intervention in natural flow patterns and changes in land use
P.P. Schot and J. van der Wal (Utrecht, Netherlands). 297

Methodology and comparative study of monthly water balance models in Belgium, China and Burma
G.L. Vandewiele, C.-Y. Xu and Ni-Lar-Win (Brussels, Belgium) 315

The role of dambos in determining river flow regimes in Zimbabwe
A. Bullock (Wallingford, UK) 349

Dambo hydrology in southern Africa — review and reassessment
A. Bullock (Wallingford, UK) 373

Announcement 397